

Christen,

I just now opened your email. I wish I would have seen your email sooner since we might have met on Saturday to discuss this further.

I have talked this issue over with legal counsel, as you know, and your suggestion for their review does not satisfy the main point of our disagreement. That point being whether or not the administration can review an article prior to publication. I am sorry but I simply cannot agree to give up that right.

As we just discussed over the phone, we are at loggerheads and therefore I am shutting down the Echo (hopefully temporarily) until this issue is resolved. I will contact the printer.

The school board has been informed of this issue and I will tell them that you would like to review it with them this coming Thursday as you stated in your memo. If this changes, please let me know.
